First Leadership F

Spencer, IN — Twenty-nine undergraduates have undergone a week of intensive training on leadership development as a result of Alpha Kappa Alpha's first Leadership Fellows Seminar, June 24-29, at the Canyon Inn. And, according to the results from a formal evaluation, the conference was a positive experience — the objectives were accomplished.

Therefore, the 29 Fellows can now engage in sound decision-making, resolve conflicts, execute correct parliamentary procedure, speak confidently, solve problems, conduct research, organize efficiently, manage by objectives, grasp and execute power and exhibit human qualities.

And the Fellows will get a chance to showcase their skills when they intern with state and national leaders during the Summer of 1980. This is phase II of the program which is designed to develop a pool of trained female leaders.

During the week, the Fellows were involved in structured workshop presentations. The "efficient staff" which conducted the sessions was labeled as one of the strengths of the seminar. Workshop leaders included Sorors Janet Ballard, volunteer coordinator and immediate past Mid-Atlantic Regional Director; and Carolyn H. Troupe, assistant professor, Towson State University (D.C.); and Flossie Dedmond, dean emerita, Coppin State College (Baltimore, Maryland).

Also on hand to provide the expertise were Soror Doctors Eva Evans, director, educational planning, Lansing School District (MI); Erma Waddy Hines, associate professor, Southern University (LA); Mable P. McClean, president, Barber-Scotia College (Concord, N.C.); and Lucretia Payton, associate professor, Georgia State University (Atlanta).

Additionally, Soror Constance K. Holland, instructor, Monroe County Community Schools Corporation (Bloomington, IN), served as enrichment director for the seminar. After sessions, the Fellows got a chance to tour Indiana University's campus, attend a concert on the grounds, and disco at the Black Cultural Center. They also were special guests at the Brown Theatre (Bloomington) where they saw the comedy, "Harvey."

Special guests at the seminar were Sorors Barbara K. Phillips and Faye B. Bryant, Supreme Basileus and First Supreme Anti-Basileus, respectively. Dr. Phillips served as opening speaker, while Soror Bryant was the speaker for the closing meeting.

Two regional directors also visited the Fellows at different times. Soror Peggy LeCompte, Central Regional Director, and Soror Dr. Gloria Smith, Great Lakes Regional Director, were also in attendance. As the hostess regional director, Soror LeCompte came to extend a personal welcome to the Fellows, while Soror Smith was the supervising instructor from Michigan State University, through which the girls received three hours credit for the seminar which can be transferred to their respective colleges.

In summarizing the week's activities, Soror Ballard said, "Twenty-nine undergraduate Alpha Kappa Alpha women met together with 15 graduate Alpha Kappa Alpha women in an experience of sharing and caring, in a new and exciting experience, and . . . learned new and additional skills in leadership, human and group dynamics." Additionally, she said, "Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority has launched a first-of-its-kind program that can and should have far-reaching positive implications."

Flows Seminar Held

You know they said it had to be an original project.

Is this the place?

... May we treat the Supreme as the label says.

Believe us, the sessions weren't that bad.

message across to them?

Thanks... for everything.
